Between 1979 and 1983, five young men and boys - Alan Barnes, Neil Muir, Peter Stogneff, Mark Langley and Richard Kelvin - were murdered in cases linked to the group known as 'The Family'. Only one person has ever been convicted, for the murder of Richard Kelvin. No one has been convicted for the murders of Neil, Peter, Alan or Mark.

Suppression orders still prevent publication of names connected with the investigation. The families are seeking to have those orders reviewed and lifted where legally possible.

THE FAMILIES NEED ANSWERS. ACCOUNTABILITY. JUSTICE.

They need your help to take the fight to court. Challenging the suppression orders has legal costs. Your donation will help fund those costs.
